

Vacationing in Your Model A

(Taken from The Delineator, July 1929)

By Patti Jones

With summer rapidly approaching, traveling in your Model A requires consideration on what to pack, for both the woman and the man. The next couple of series of articles tell what the well-dressed Model A'er would be packing for that ultimate vacation.

For the Model A Lady, a dust-proof tan feather-weight woolen coat is a must. This coat comes with a notched collar, adorned with stitching to match the pockets, and flared cuffs. Her cloche is tan, same as the coat and trimmed with ribbon. The color selection is neutral to blend with every color of the rainbow to match what dresses she has packed for the trip.

For the man, it is suggested that he wear an all-purpose outfit to withstand the stress of long driving, or even changing of a tire on his roadster. His suit is double-breasted of imported wool tweed. With it, he's wearing a tan collar-attached shirt, reddish-brown foulard tie, and tan soft-toed oxfords.

For a round of golf at a visiting country club, this Model A lady is wearing a pale pink angora blouse with matching cardigan for those cool mornings. Her skirt is a light-weight white flannel. She's wearing lisle hose and brown and white shoes with rubber soles. Her cloche is made of pale pink felt to top off her golf ensemble.

This man's golf suit is made of plain-color homespun brown wool. His jacket allows for ease of movement with a pleat at the back of the sleeve that has four buttons that really button at the cuff. His knickers are pleated at the waist for comfort. His brown golf shoes are complemented by his golf length honeycomb-patterned stockings.
